WHAT WOMEN VOTERS WANT UNIFORM DIVORCE LAWS, SAYS MRS. CLARENCE MACKAY.

Also Says in Introducing Gov. Shafroth of Colorado to an Audience That Some Want to Serve the State-Governor Talks on Colorado Woman Suffrage

Gov. Shafroth of Colorado, who spoke sterday afternoon at the Garden heatre under the auspices of the Equal ranchise Society, isn't by any means ewarm on the subject of woman frage. Mrs. Clarence Mackay, presint of the league, said in introducing im that no one was better qualified than he to give an expert opinion on the practical working out of votes for women, ad the audience seemed perfectly willing accept her statement.

Mrs. Mackay didn't make a long speech ut she touched upon a question which suffragists do not often discuss but which has figured prominently in all the scent speeches made by antis.

ne of the first things that the women of the United States will do when they t the ballot," she said, "will be to es blish a uniform divorce law."

This prophecy was greeted by a tre burst of applause and Mrs. sckay proceeded to describe the necesty of the mother in politics.

It is the wife and mother who is mos ctively concerned in the laws which food and lighting and sanitary litions," she said. "It is she who must ecide how the family income shall be She is the real economist should have some voice in making he laws which govern these things.

Surely the working woman needs the lot in order that she may express ough legislation her desires in regard the conditions which shall govern her bor. It is impossible for men to adedetermine the things which are sary for a woman to have in order at she may perform her tasks properly nd with the least expenditure of vital mergy on her part. There is a third here are the women possessed of both rains and leisure who wish to give their ervices to the State.

"It has been said that the suffrage movement tends to disrupt the home. That is not true. We suffragists love our homes and want to work for their best interest. We want to give our ervice to the State also.

This is really our birthday party on know," she concluded, "and in com ng here you are all helping to make

Gov. Shafroth advanced all the usua reuments in favor of woman suffrage ddition to several which he had ght of himself. He made his greatat hit with the audience when he dealt blow to the popular anti contention a blow to the popular anti contention that if women should become voters they would no longer receive from men the various little courtesies which are now conceded to them almost as rights.

"I just want to say," he declared, "if you want to compare New York and Denver on this point, that any one who rides around on street cars will see a nundred men in Denver get up to give their seats to women where he will see one in New York. This, I think, is about as fair a test as could be made of a matter so intangible as I think, is about as fair a test as could be made of a matter so intangible as the one under discussion. I should say, judging from observation made during my ten years in Congress, that Washington and Denver were very much alike in this respect.

the said that government, according to the Declaration of Independence, rests upon the consent of the governed, and that women had just as much right, according to the eternal principles of justice and equity, to express their opinions by voting as did men.

"Women have property as well as men, continued the Governor. "Who made it? Men. Too often it is bounded by the litchen. Men have said that God Almighty evidenced that a woman's life should be bounded by the walls of her home. I remember hearing it preached should be bounded by the walls of her home. I remember hearing it preached when I was young that it was right to own alaves, that slavery was in fact a divine institution and that the patriarchs of old, God's chosen people, owned slaves. Well, the slaves are free. Did God have acthing to do with that? They say that it is the will of God that women 'should keep out of politics. Women vote in Colorado, Montana, Idaho and Utah. Did God have nothing to do with that?"

The audience signified that the answer to the speaker's question was yes. The

The audience signified that the answer to the speaker's question was yes. The Governor told his hearers that nearly all the big movements for freedom had begun in mountainous regions and had afterward spread to the lowlands. There was William Tell, who lived in the Alps, he said, and also the Scottish Highlanders, so it was perfectly natural that the first States to grant suffrage to women should be four Rocky Mountain States.

The Governor explained that the red light district of Denver, which had been

The Governor explained that the red light district of Denver, which had been made to figure so prominently in the speeches of the enemies of woman suffrage, really didn't count very much, because it comprised only one-half of 1 per cent. of the population. The largest proportion of the Denver votes came from Capitol Hill, he said, where the best people lived.

cal conventions in Colorado, he said, and had made the polling places as safe and comfortable as department stores. They invariably voted on the right side of a moral issue, he added, and weren't a bit meanly for office.

moral issue, he added, and weren't a bit greedy for office.

"The only one they really seem to want," he explained, "is that of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and they usually get that.

"Woman suffrage is certainly expedient and practicable. Colorado proves that. Women have had much to do with During my ten years in Washington Miss Anthony and Miss Shaw and others, representing thousands of women, tried to get Congress to pass a bill submitting a woman suffrage amendment to the several States. They did not once succeed in having it reported by the Judiciary Committee—even unfavorably. If one-fifth that number of men had petitioned for the submission of any resolution whatsoever dozens of representatives would soever dozens of representatives would have been eager to make the report. Non-voters have no power in legislatures, ne matter what the anti-suffragists say." When the Governor had finished Mrs. Mackey said that any one who wanted to could ask questions. A wornan immediately wanted to know what proportion of Colorado women voted. The Governor replied that at the last election in Denver 35,000 women were registered and 29,085 voted, which he said was a very excellent proportion.

But what proportion of all the wome who were entitled to vote did vote? ersisted the woman.
The Governor was puzzled, and rehis answer. The woman seemed puzzled still. Several persons i into the discussion, with increasingly bewildering results. Finally a man explained that "registering" in Colorado was not like registering in New York. A light broke in upon the Governor, who then told the women that the political parties in Colorado registered every person of either sex who was entitled to vote, so that he had answered her ques-vote, so that he had answered her question in the first place.

In reply to other questions, he said that women got the same salaries as men when they were employed in equal offices by the State, and that there was a tendency toward equalization of wages by private employers, although the law of supply and demand was of course in operation in Colorado as in other places.

Among those present were Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mrs. Shafroth, Judge Barlow, Mrs. Robert Goelet, Mrs. William Butler Duncan, Mrs. John Brannan, Mrs. Robert Goelet, Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. and Mr. Frederick Nathan.

ECONOMIC PLACE OF WOMEN League of Political Education and Acad emy of Political Science Dine Over It.

The Academy of Political Science and the League for Political Education dined last night at the Hotel Astor and discus the economic position of women.

It wasn't by any means a suffrage meeting, but with Mrs. Philip Snewder and Gov. Shafroth of Colorado among the speakers, to say nothing of Sir Horac Curzon Plunkett of Dublin, who once spent ten years in the State of Wyoming. what could the committee do? Even Prof. Emily Greene Balch, who teaches economics up at Wellesley, said that women were a misfit in the present economic system and would be until they got the vote.

"Women crowd men out of some em ployments because they are willing to take less wages," she said. "They are the white Chinamen. As for professional women, they either devote them selves entirely to their professions and do not marry, or else they marry and either not marry, or else they marry and either give up their professions or give them cally a half hearted interest. The well to do woman is even more inefficient and incapable. Women are simply not adjusted to economic conditions. They have not progressed as rapidly as has industry. Industrial conditions should be adjusted to the people. That is where the value of the woman's vote would come in. She should have a voice in determining what sort of legislation should govern the conditions of her labor."

should govern the conditions of her labor."

Mrs. Snowden said that she had come here to get information about our great and wonderful country, and she agreed with Mr. Burns that Chicago was a pocket edition of hell and that Jane Addams was the best man in the country. Gov. Shafroth told several anecdotes to amuse the diners. The Hon. P. Neil, Commissioner of Labor at Washington, couldn't be present because he was out trying to settle the shirtwaist strike.

Miss Grace Strachan desired to take his place on the programme, but the committee, which consisted of Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman, Samuel McCune Lindsay and Prof. Frank J. Goodnow, decided that there wasn't time.

Mr. Ely said that he would have been perfectly willing to let Miss Strachan speak, but that he wasn't on the committee.

CHARITY GIFTS WENT ASTRAY

MISS GUNTHER'S ALLOWANCE OF $25 A MONTH TO A FAMILY.

Hogan Said She Gave It to the Bishop Family-Never Got It, Said the Bishops-Was Another Family. Sald Mrs. Hogan, Just Like the First.

Miss Amelia B. Gunther, a middle aged woman of means with a charitable dis-position, is suing Mrs. Jane E. Hogan, who lives at 34 Prospect street, Long Island City, for $476 before Justice Frank D. Sturges in the Ninth District Municipal Court to recover certain gifts alleged to have been used fraudulently.

The money was given to Mrs. Hogan by Miss Gunther and was to be used to help a needy family of the name of Bishop living at 80 Washington street, Long Island City, which Mrs. Hogan represented as being in the most destitute circurnstances Instead of being applied to this charitable purpose Miss Gunther charges that the money was appropriated by Mrs. Hogan. In the fall of 1901 Mrs Hogan, then a professional nurse, was employed by Miss Gunther. A feeling of friendship sprang up between them and Mrs. Hogan told Miss Gunther of the dire, need of a poor family. She told of the starving children and the misery they were forced to live in, and this so appealed to Miss Gunther that she gave $25 a month to Mrs. Hogan for the support of the family Communications through the mail from Gunther frequently how much good the allowance was doing the family. Postal cards received by Miss Gunther from Jenny, Margaret and Joe Bishop saying hew good Santa Claus had been to them since Miss Gunther had been helping the family encouraged her to give more freely and liberally. Money and nearly everything in the way of clothes that Miss Gunther and her friends could give was sent to Mrs. Hogan.

About a month ago Miss Gunther became convinced that she had been duped. Through her attorney, William L. Snider, 5 Beekman street, she brought suit against Mrs. Hogan.

In the hearing of the case before Justice Sturgis, Mrs. Hogan asserted that she had given all of the contributions to Mrs. Clara Bishop, a widow, whose husband, she said, had been killed on the Long Island Railroad. She told how Clara Bishop with her three children had to struggle and how Mrs. Bishop had adopted Maud Nevins, an invalid, that she might be cared for.

be cared for.

Mrs. Bishop, her three children, Joseph, Maragret and Jenny, and Maud Nevins appeared as witnesses. Each in turn fiatly denied that Mrs. Hogan had ever given a penny to the family. Mrs. Hogan jumped to her feet and said that she had made a mistake and that it was not this Bishop family but another Bishop family living at the same address, 80 Washington street. Long Island City. She explained to the Justice that the second Bishop family in every respect was iden-Bishop family in every respect was identical with the Bishop Iamily testifying in court. She said that the head of the family, a widow named Clara, had three children of her own, named Joseph, Margaret and Jenny and an adopted daughter, Maud Nevins, who was an invalid.

daughter, Maud Nevins, who was an invalid.

The Justice saw there couldn't be such a coincidence, but Mrs. Hogan, who is a dignified woman, impressed him so much with her story that the case was adjacent in the case was adjacent by the case was a much with her story that the case was adjourned to produce the second Bishop family. It failed to appear at the next hearing. Mrs. Hogan told the court that the Bishops—the real Bishops—had suddenly gone to Illinois. The Justice spent half an hour trying to learn exactly where the mysterious Bishop family had moved to in Illinois. The Justice said that because of the unusual circumstances of the case he would not be able to give a decision for three or four days.

James T. Olwell, who represents Mrs. Hogan said yesterday:
"The allegations brought against Mrs.
Hogan are untrue. She is one of the best Island City. She accepted the mono from Miss Gunthor, but immediately turned it over to charity. The postal which she sent were authentic. Th donations were given to a family by name of Bishop who have, moved

AGAINST PARK AVE. HOTEL

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court affirmed yesterday the verdiot for $1,250 obtained by Mary L. Smith against Froderick A. Reed and Endaise Barnett, proprietors of the Park Avenue Hotel.

The testimony showed that Mrs. Smith and her husband, Edwin R. Smith of Stamford, Conn., went to the hotel on Stamford, Conn., went to the hotel on the night of February 4, 1908, and met Frederick C. Smutzer, a theatrical man controlling 125 theatres. They had drinks in the café, and Smutzer, who was leaving the hotel that night, gave Mr. and Mrs. Smith his room. Later they were ordered out of the room and were not permitted to register for that room or another one. Mrs. Smith asked $5,000 for the humiliation of being ejected and $2,500 for not being accepted as a guest of the hotel.

W. Bend Swindle Indictments.

Col. T. C. P. Colmey of Nevada, sir, or Kid Murray, who was sentenced in 1908 to four years and six months for selling a cancelled bond away back in 1900, a sentence he is serving, was before Judge Swann in General Sossions yeaterday to get rid of two indictments pending against him. These indictments were in connection with the Norfolk and Western bond swindle.

Colmey says he is entitled to parole, but that the Board of Pardons won't do anything for him unless the indicements are dismissed. He was convicted in the Norfolk and Western case, but the higher courts reversed the conviction. The indictments still stand. Judge Swann reserved decision.
